

THAMES VALLEY EARLY MUSIC FORUM

www.tvemf.org

The Thames Valley Early Music Forum is for people who play early instruments or sing early music, both amateurs and professionals. About once a month we put on one-day workshops with professional conductors, often well-known experts in their field, covering a wide range of baroque and renaissance music. Every two months, members receive our newsletter 'Tamesis' which contains information about our workshops and those in other parts of the UK, as well as a list of local early music concerts, articles and members' advertisements. Members have cheaper admission to our own workshops and those of other forums. The area we officially cover includes London and Oxford and the counties in between but we have members from all over southern England.
